John Kennedy, leader of the strikers, last night made a direct charge of "profiteering" against the packing concerns. He said:

"The refusal of the 'Big Five' and its subsidiaries to continue their regular yearly contract with their workers in New York is the direct cause of actual hardship to practically every family in the city through increased prices of meat. The shortage caused by the strike, which the packers forced upon the union, and the advantage which they have taken of the situation to profiteer have now effected all the retail dealers of the city and the customers they serve.

facts were developed:

"1. There is no shortage of meats in this section and there are no indications that such a shortage will develop.

"2. The strike has interfered in some measure with the normal channels of distribution, which has brought about an increase in the wholesale price of most meat products.

"3. This increase in wholesale prices is being reflected in retail prices and is a natural economic development.

"4. This arrangement in the movement in supplies and the price increases appear to be only temporary, and should disappear in the near future as the industry becomes adjusted to the existing situation."

The cause of the strikers became considerably strengthened during the day when it was announced that 6,500 union retail butcher employees had served notice on their employers that they would refuse to handle the products of the "Big Five" subsidiaries in New York City and Westchester County. Struggle May Be Ended
CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (By The Associated Press).—Declaring that striking packing house workers are standing firm against what they term an "arbitrary reduction of wages," and denying statements by the "Big Five" packers that operations in Chicago are nearly normal, strike leaders in a statement to-night asserted that "if the strike is to be a contest of endurance it will run for months, and guerilla warfare, if that term can be used, can be expected in every packing house center throughout the country."

The statement was given to Secretary of Labor Davis over the signature of C. J. Hayes, president, and Dennis Lane, secretary of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America.

Secretary Davis, in Chicago on his way to Washington from Milwaukee, asked the strike leaders for a statement of their side of the issue.

Two conditions upon which they said the strike can be settled were named by the union:

First—That the packers rescind the wage reduction put into effect November 28.

Second—That the packers agree to submit the question of wage reduction to arbitration and restore the former wage pending the arbitration proceedings.

second performance of "Boris Godunoff." The Russian artist's superb voice, which appeared even richer than at the previous performance, was generously poured forth in a noble flood of tone. The spell of this voice, the tragic force and emotional sincerity of Chaliapine's acting, the eloquence of his facial play, the man's towering personality, left an unforgettable impression and combined in making probably the greatest impersonation ever seen on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Chaliapine's companions in the cast included Mmes. Delaunois, Howard and Matzenauer and Messrs. Pertile, Mardones and Ananian. But the eyes and ears of the audience were intent upon the central figure of this tragic drama. Nothing else mattered.

Chaliapine was recalled again and again, and was cheered to the echo.
